Sailing Vessel Tossed About by Mercy of Gales, Given Up for Lost, is Safe

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland,
Jan. 17.—Inhabitants of St.
John's rejoiced today over receipt of news that the three-masted sailing vessel Neptune, missing for six weeks, had drifted across the Atlantic at the mercy of wind and waves to a safe landing at Toburn, Scotland.

News of the almost unbelieveable rescue was received in a telegram from Toburn which disclosed that the vessel and its complement of 13 men and one woman had arrived safely

at the Scottish port.

The suffering crew of 14 helpless persons, who had been lost for six weeks, were found by the Neptune.

On Dec. 13 the S. S. Neptune was sighted during the night, but owing to darkness was not seen until the morning.

The Neptune, however, favored the frail crew, and after six weeks of buffeting, wind and waves drove her across the dangerous
North Atlantic to safety.

Life. Four of them reached port, and as days passed the conviction grew that the Neptune had foundered with loss of all aboard.

JOBLESS MEN GET CHANCE TO EARN SUPPLIES

Work Provided in New Plan
Devised by Community
Fund

PAID IN COAL, FOOD

Same System Proposed to City for Operation of Relief Department

Relief is given unemployed men and necessary work is accomplished simultaneously by an arrangement placed in operation here this week by the Marion Community Fund.

Heads of families who have been thrown out of work in the last few weeks, have been set to the task of digging Camp John A. Owens, Boy Scout camp, south of here, for its opening next spring.

In return, the men receive groceries
and coal orders, but never money.
This has proven a satisfactory arrangement for both the Community Fund and the otherwise unemployed men, officials of the fund report.

Camp Damaged
No little damage was done at the scout camp by the recent flood condition and the thick coat of ice, which broke tree limbs, and even felled some of the trees. Considerable work will be necessary to restore the camp and clean away the fallen limbs and trees.

Since the Boy Scouts receive $5 per month from the Community Fund, officials of the fund have found it convenient to turn this work over to unemployed men in return for groceries and coal. Many of these unemployed men are receiving aid from the fund, and food officials report that all deserving unemployed men are willing to work for the groceries and coal.

This arrangement also gives the workers at the camp the satisfaction of knowing that they are not supporting their families solely through charity.

So satisfactory has this arrangement been that Community Fund officials have announced their intention of recommending it to city officials. The city of Marion expends considerable money each year for poor relief, and could be getting return for this money in form of work, the fund officials point out.

This arrangement also eliminates the giving of groceries, clothing and coal to families which make no effort to support themselves, but which rely on charity for their supplies. Should the city adopt this plan, these individuals would be obliged to work for their support, either from outside jobs or with the city.

An agreement has also been reached with several local coal companies by the Community Fund that unemployed men shall be given several hours work in coal yards, and receive in return coal orders in proportion to the work they have done. This also gives men willing to work an opportunity to partially support their families.

Love's Reawakening

Dicky Takes the Blame for Disturbance

AT DICKIE'S maternal abhorrence to Knave, our temperamental little maid, who had brought everybody to the kitchen with her peevishness, drew outside the screen which covered her head and peered with indignance at her audience. But at the sight of my mother-in-law standing almost directly in front of her, she popped back again as if her shoe had just had just caught sight of a majestic and predatory sight of a majestic and predatory Turkey.

"I should think you would cover your face, my mother-in-law," said sternly. "Anything so absolutely idiotic as this performance I never heard. If there had been a dagger in the basement like was threatening you with a revolver, you couldn't have made more noise. If I ever hear of you yelling like this again I'll give you something to yell for." The old-fashioned parental threat, coming so loudly at the end of her tirade, was almost too much for Dicky's mischievous and naive. Patiently she had realized, as she always does, with much irritation, that there really is no punishment she can visit upon Knave, who is in reality in the employ of my father. Indeed, I believe that she never said nothing to the girl. My father had remained in the kitchen instead of hurrying back to his room as soon as he found out the reason for Knave's performance.

By my ninth was short-lived, for my mother-in-law swung around facing me when she had finished with Knave.

"I think there is an explanation coming from you, Margaret," she

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

Today was the last day of school for the week and when me and Dickie woke up and felt how cold it was outside we were glad it because I don't like to go to school and don't like to hate me. I would be last in my class. I didn't have so much time to go to the school. But I know I don't go to school and get out of school and make much money when I'm up and I am going to need a lot of money. I will have a lot of money. I asked my father how much money it cost to get married.
He said not so very much, but I don't want a fella hard to keep
home. Then I asked him if a fella
costs more than one wife, and he said he couldn't have more than one wife, and nobody wanted

me to hurry. We all began picking
them up and putting them down, and when we got there my mother told us
that my grandfather was away and
that her and my aunt had dressed up
and dressed Annabelle Lee up and had been going visiting and had looked
the kitchen door and all the windows,
and then when they stepped out of the front door Annabelle Lee slammed it behind them with her inside, and
she couldn't unlock it and they were almost frantic. We all looked in the windows and I didn't want to go up
over the roof like I do sometimes, but when we looked in the kitchen window Annabelle Lee was peering at the kitchen fire with the poker and inspiring to see the coals fell in the ash-pan. So I went around and clumped up the way I sneak out nights and

said, and there was little difference
between her manner of addressing Katie and me. "What in the world
were you doing down in the basement
at this unseemly hour? No, you couldn't look at Richard" as she
caught the furtive appealing glance
I sent my husband. "I'm not talking
to him, I'm talking to you."

For the fraction of a second Dickie
kept silent and I wondered a bit
dearly if he meant to let me hear
the brunt of his mother's exaspera-
tion, as he has done so many times
in the past. And, after all, I reminded myself with a belated sense
of justice, he was not the originator
of the plans for fitting up the basement for the surprise for the children. I was the logic person and
explained the matter to his late mother,
and I blamed myself for the order—
the only word which fits a grilling
from Dickie's mother.

Dickie Steps In

But I had not opened my mouth

"I was at a time. Then my mother-in-law said she knew what were mighty lucky to have my father said. "So I thought so then they smothered me at each other, and my mother said if I was thinking of going home, I told him I would have to go. He said he would say that to some one else, but I'm getting kinda used to it now, and sure, but we are still together. It might come once or twice out of school today and down the street toward us there still a long ways off from the boiler, and there was my mother and my aunt hollering to open the door and the whole bunch came in and my mother hugged Annabelle Lee instead of spanking her like she would of me. But she had made a lot of punkin pies and sent them all to us and was nice telling around the kitchen table when Peete told the Lost Boy of Tripp to close his eyes and give his mouth, and when he did it the whole bunch laughed him with their share of pie. He looked like a mess, and was so mad he cried. My mother was mad, too, and ran us out. She didn't care about the Lost Boy of Tripp, but was mad about the pie. I asked Peete what she had been going to do to the mutt and she said we all beat her to it. I didn't. I let mine."

"I evolved a great thought yesterday about Christmas for the boys which involved firing up the basement. I emitted a few deep thoughts about it to me girl friend here last night and asked her to look over the ground and tell me what she thought about it. And you ought to know, Mother, that Maizie, besides being a most obedient wife in the world, also doubtless is the earliest bird that ever went after noon. That's the explanation for her trip downstairs this morning."

"You mean that's the explanation you're giving me," his mother retorted tartly. But I saw the corners of her mouth quick into a reluctant smile, a tribute which Dickie's nonsense generally won't from her, and knew my husband had saved the day for me.

Mother Is Placated

But I did not dare to send him even the most fleeting glance of gratitude, for I knew that his mother's keen eyes were watching both of us. Instead, I turned to her with what Lillian calls my "best go-to-meeting smile."

"Won't you let me tell you about Dickie's plan?"

She came frequently toward Karpis, who had taken advantage of Mother Graham's diverted attention to take her apart from her head and tipsy order by her name. "It's about time you were up. Everybody will be starved to death by the time you get breakfast on the table."

"I feel terrible, Karpis," Karpis murmured meekly. But a few seconds later, when I was pouring thickly and his mother out of the kitchen and she snatched herself to be alone, these came to life again from her place in front of the stove.

"But old redskins told me I get breakfast, two, three times over, else she get on shirts and shoes."

But there came no answering reply from me to make her realize.

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

- BY ADOLF GARRISON

He was picked up with my arm and put in the broken end. Don't know how he follows to get a look at your marks."

"I measured Jimmie as he undid his shirt and looked at the find. I saw a scar and metal bandage. He had been dropped by the car. The scar might quit and the bandage might be torn. Otherwise it was not torn. The workmanship was fine. I saw the long thin blade buried in the murdered man's chest. It was a slender, cruel weapon, common to Italians. There were no fingerprints similar in Scho field."

"I told you another thing," Tyson said. "He produced a small steel box, a pocket, a cross between a box and a pocket, a cross between a box of toothed scissors and an open spatula. 'This is a wedge for a door. It is from the outside, pro-

Dickie Takes the Blame for Disturbance

AT DICKIE'S internal adoration to Katie, our temperamental little maid, who had brought everybody to the kitchen with her shivers, drew aside the screen which covered her head and peered with listlessness at her audience. But at the sight of my mother-in-law's slender plumed head in front of her she drew back again as if she were a mouse that had just caught sight of a majestic and predatory tiger. A majestic and predatory Tiger.

"I should think you would cover your face, my mother-in-law said sternly. "Anything so absolutely idiotic as this performance I never heard. If there had been a tiger in the basement you are threatening you with a revolver, you couldn't have made more noise. If I ever hear you yelling like this again I'll— I'll give you something to yell for."

The old-fashioned parental threat coming so loudly at the end of her tirade was almost too much for Dickie's mischievous and naive. Patently she had realized, as she always does, with much irritation, that there really is no punishment she can visit on the head of her father. Indeed, I knew that she would have said nothing to the girl if my father had remained in the kitchen instead of hurrying back to his room as soon as he found out the reason for Katie's performance.

By my ninth was short-lived, for my mother-in-law swung around facing me when she had finished with Katie.

"I think there is an explanation coming from you, Margaret," she

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

Today was the last day of school for the week and when me and Dick woke up and felt how cold it was outside we were glad it because I don't like to go to school and Dick likes to hate me. I would be last in the class. I didn't have so much money as Dick. But I know I can go to school and get something to make much money when I grow up and I am going to need a lot of money. I will have a lot of money. I asked my father how
much money it cost to get married.
He said not so very much, but
I don't want a fella hard to keep
home. Then I asked him if a fella
costs more than one wife, and

me to hurry. We all began picking
them up and putting them down, and
when we got there my mother told us
that my grandfather was away and
that her and my aunt had dressed up
and dressed Annabelle Lee up and had
been going visiting and had looked
the kitchen door and all the windows,
and then when they stepped out of the
front door Annabelle Lee slammed it
behind them with her inside, and
almost frantic. We all looked in the windows and I didn't want to go up
over the roof like I do sometimes, but
when we looked in the kitchen window Annabelle Lee was poking at the kitchen fire with the poker and inspiring to see the coals fall in the ash-
pan. So I went around and clumped up
the way I sneak out nights and

between her manner of addressing
Katie and me. "What in the world
were you doing down in the basement
at this unseemly hour? No, you
couldn't look at Richard" as she
caught the furtive appealing glance
I sent my husband. "I'm not talking
to him; I'm talking to you."

For the fraction of a second Dick
kept silent and I wondered a bit
dearly if he meant to let me hear
the brunt of his mother's exaspera-
tion, as he has done so many times
in the past. And, after all, I reminded myself with a belated sense
of justice, he was not the originator
of the plans for fitting up the basement for the surprise for the children. I was the logic person and
explained the matter to his late mother,
and I blamed myself for the order—
the only word which fits a grilling
from Dick's mother.

Dicky Steps In

But I had not opened my mouth
for the first word when Dicky threw up his hand with a peremptory gesture for silence.

"You should get the kitchen ship, Mother," he said.

"I was at a time. Then my mother-in-law said she knew what were mighty lucky to have my father said. "So I thought so then they smeltered me at each other, and my mother said if I was thinking of going home, I told him I would have to go. He said he would say that to some one else. I got getting kinda used to it, and sure, but we are still not able to might come once. I went out of school today and down the street toward where there still a long ways off from the boiler, and there was my mother and my aunt hollering to open the door and the whole bunch came in and my mother hugged Annabelle Lee instead of spanking her like she would of me. But she had made a lot of punkin pies and sent them all to us and was nice telling around the kitchen sink when Peck told the Lost Boy of Tripp to close his eyes and give his mouth, and when he done it the whole bunch laughed him with their share of pie. He looked like a mess, and was so mad he cried. My mother was mad, too, and ran us out. She didn't care about the Lost Boy of Tripp, but was mad about the pie. Substantial Sausage Finds Ready Place on Winter Menu; Many Varieties Sold

BY ALICE LYNN BARRY

No matter what you call a sausage—hot, cold, smoked, or otherwise—it's sure to be popular. Good sausage is a satisfying dish for the hungry, and it tempers the appetite of the fussy by its fragrant spiciness. When in doubt, it's safe to serve sausage either as a breakfast, luncheon or supper dish. Especially in cold weather, when we need substantial foods.

There isn't any reason, however, why we should stick to the two or three most common sausages. Some know only the "frankfurters" to give them their most dignified appellation. Or the little pork sausages, or the larger, beefy Bologna.

But whenever there are enough stocked delicatessen or foreign shops there one can obtain any of a dozen varieties of sausage. Sausages are an international dish—French, Italian, German, English—all have their special kinds. The Germans perhaps are the great sausage specialists, and they make literally over a hundred varieties. Indeed, there are almost 20 kinds of liver sausages, about some made from beef liver, the cheapest, others with a good liver base, meeting several dollars the pound.

But pork and beef are the basic of most sausage, and the variety in flavor is caused by the different spices used. Cervelat is a sausage of beef or veal and no pork is used. Salami is usually tough meat, and makes a hard sausage which is what many people prefer. But it is also true that tough meat has a much richer flavor than the "tender" portions. Italian salami is the most pungent, but milder brands are made in this country, and we import some from Germany, Switzerland and Hungary.

There is now on the market also less sausage, which looks and tastes like the familiar "sausage", but is composed of the old problem—what shall be done with the casing? These whole sausages, like pork or frankfurters can be boiled and served with mashed potatoes, cooked cabbage, chard, spinach or other greens.

A SIMPLE STEP TOWARDS HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a Daily Essential and Millions Know Its Effectiveness in Relief of Constipation

Perhaps the one simple thing you are not doing to guarantee permanent health is having sufficient roughage in your food. Absence of this roughage is the direct cause of constipation which results in so many other ills—headaches, listlessness, general depression, indigestion and, sometimes, serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. It is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily (in serious cases, with each meal) is the proper amount.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also helps you to health in other ways. It is rich in iron, practically all of which goes into the blood, bringing red, healthy color to the complexion. It helps prevent anemia. Be sure to include it in reducing diets.

Many eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with cream or milk added. It is a delicious addition to cereals, fruits and soups. In cooked foods, such as bran muffins it is just as effective in the relief of constipation. Recommended by doctors. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PENSION INCREASE URGED BY MOUSER

Congressman Presents Argument for Pending Bills in Speech Before House

Copy of a speech delivered in increased pensions for Civil War Spanish-American war veterans given on the floor of the house of representatives in Washington, D. C., on Jan. 15 by Congressman Grant H. Mouser, Jr., of Marion, have been received in Marion.

In a comprehensive speech, Congressman Mouser pointed out the necessity of providing these veterans with at least sufficient money to survive on, which, he declared, is considerably higher than when original pension bills were drawn.

Two bills are now pending in committee which, if passed, will allow greater pensions to war veterans and their dependents.

German Women Are Less Radical Than Men Voters

INDIANAPOLIS—German women are more conservative than German men. In a typical Berlin district, in which men and women voted separately during the recent municipal election, women were far in the majority among the voters for the radical Communist and Socialist parties. On the other hand, many more women than men voted for the more moderate parties like the Catholics, the Democrats, the Catholic Centre, the German People's party and the National People's party.

VITAL

HOW AMERICA'S HOUSEWIVES SAVED $25,993,983.33 AT KROGER STORES LAST YEAR.

Based on the savings which Kroger customers made in the purchase of twelve basic food items at Kroger Stores last year, housewives saved nearly $26,000,000.00. These items, those that the average family uses almost daily, were: Butter, Fresh Eggs, Bread, Sugar, Coffee, Flour, Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, Lard, Meat, Potatoes. Millions and millions of pounds of these commodities were consumed by Kroger customers. Taking this quantity of merchandise at the average price at which it sold in Kroger Stores last year and comparing it with the average price of the same merchandise as sold at grocery stores throughout the country, we find that the total purchases at Kroger Stores on all foods were made at a saving of nearly $26,000,000.00.

This saving is graphically represented by the drawing opposite.

Unquestionably, the ability to offer this economy is the reason why millions of women are attracted to Kroger Stores in making their food purchases.

It will pay you to consider the worthwhile economy offered in this great Economy Sale at Kroger Stores. We hope we may have the pleasure of helping you to maintain your budget at the most economical level.

The store that has done business in Marion for 21 years. Paid Taxes for 21 years. Always preached clerks to be careful, give 16 oz. for a pound—not 15—not 17. Remember too, a store that never makes a mistake doesn't do business either.

Buying at Wise's you must pay your bill and not maybe—
Now just a minute, think this over. Some stores may let you pay some time. Maybe that store pays some times his bills loses his discount. Also pays more too because he is slow. Can't you see you must pay more too if you buy there.

(Just think that over.)

Henderson says some stores are kidding the people, and if you listen in on the Radio KWKH, Shreveport, La., he says a lot more too. If it is bunk, not true, why is he not arrested? What do you think about that?

Flood Scenes at Vincennes, Ind.

The upper left is typical scene in Vincennes, Ind., where many homes along the banks of the Wabash river have been forced to evacuate their owners in favor of the water.

The scene on the right shows a group of workmen placing sandbags along a highway leading into Vincennes in their effort to halt the mud waters.

A warning has been sent to farmers in the lower photo is the Wabash bridge at Vincennes, Ind., looking toward the Illinois side. High levees on the Illinois side just beyond the bridge have sent the Wabash to a record stage of 21 feet and threatened to flood Vincennes for the second time in history. The water is practically up to the floor of the bridge. This view was taken from a Vincennes grain elevator.

PRINTED FORMS TO BE USED BY MAYOR

Check on All Orders Planned by Jones; Sets Dates for Reports

Executive orders of the mayor will be typewritten on printed forms hereafter, following the inauguration yesterday of a military method of written orders by Mayor L. Don Jones.

The orders are typewritten on a page which shows the date, the subject, to whom the order is addressed, and the order itself. All orders are signed by the mayor, and a copy of each order is placed on file. Separate copies are sent each department head affected by the order.

By using this system, Mayor Jones points out he has a permanent record of each order, and can easily check over the work of officials to see that the work is done.

Due at 1:30 Daily
Three orders issued this morning by the mayor effected several department heads.

Daily reports from all departments of all activity of the preceding day will be due in the office of the mayor at not later than 1:30 o'clock each day, one order notified officials today.

Those daily reports enable Mayor Jones to keep in constant touch with the work of each department, and also assure that all employees are kept on useful work.

Conferences of the mayor, and safety and service directors will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday a week at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Mayor Jones has requested in another order.

Sets Date for Reports
Annual reports of 1929 activities will be due from each department not later than Jan. 27, according to another order issued today by Mayor Jones.

Copies of this order were sent to T. E. Scamman, director of public safety; D. J. Harlow, director of public service; J. L. Landes, city auditor; Russell Sauer, city treasurer; Marvellen Kerr, secretary to the board of health; C. M. Tobin, police relief and sanitary policeman; and Paul Bachman, clerk to the sinking fund trustees.

Check Charge Filed Against Local Man

Wooster B. Denman, 42, of 1106 East Church st., faces charges in municipal court of issuing checks without funds. He will be arraigned soon. He was arrested last night by police after affidavits had been filed against him by B. J. Snow and Abe Schoen. He is charged with issuing two checks for $10 each to these men, one on Nov. 27 and another on Dec. 30, 1929. He signed his own name to each of the checks, which were drawn on the Marion National bank.

Prescription Saves Man Held for Intoxication

Prescription whiskey apparently has its advantages. P. D. Gaines, of 306 Park st., when arrested by police last night on South Main st. on a charge of intoxication, escaped a more serious charge when a small quantity of liquor found on his person proved to be prescription whiskey.

MRS. SCHULTZ ILL

Woman To Defend Youth Found Ransacking Her Apartment and Armed with Imitation Revolver

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Opening the door of her mid-town apartment, Mrs. Lyndall M. Olmstead discovered a young man busily engaged in packing a suitcase with her clothing.

"Stick up your hands," he commanded, leveling an imitation revolver.

Noticing the youth's nervousness and the toy pistol, Mrs. Olmstead put him a glass of water.

Relieved, the would-be bandit sat down and poured out his troubles.

The management of the apartment, hearing of the episode notified police.

Thereupon Mrs. Olmstead, the

Finds Girls Today Are Just as Bad as They Were Back in Days of Their Grandmothers

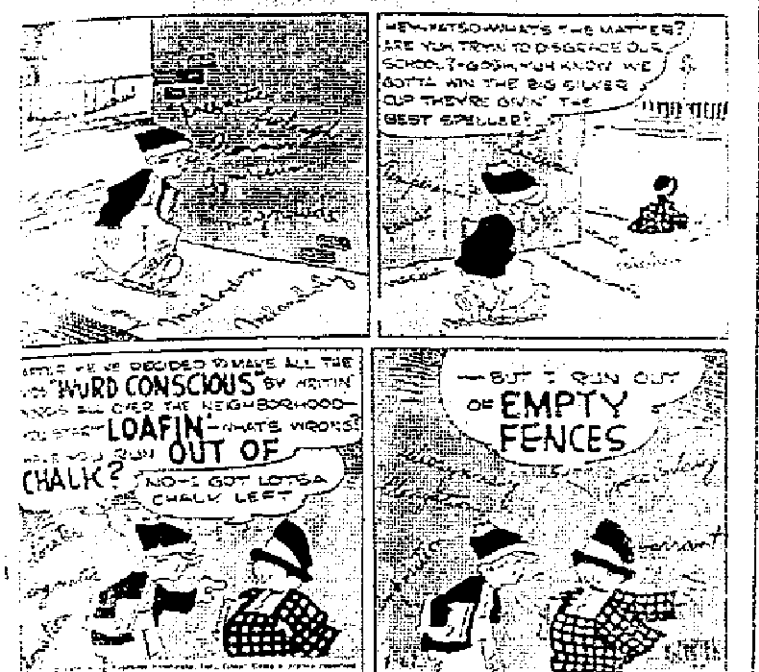

points, Jan. 17—Girls would be girls, and just as bad as they are today, were back in 1870, according to a French review, the "Courrier des Femmes," which says that grandmothers who are now talk about the "feminine" will do well to remind themselves of Philibert Audebrand's words: "There were women in the good old time, and the meaning of the word" was fifty-six years ago. "It seems to be endeavoring to little feminine as possible and no longer wear the tatty, effeminate dressings, but as suitable to their sex, but have adopted a kind of masculine attire with vest and pants on the side."

They have learned to dance, they play cribbage, smoke cigars, and it certainly would be long before they take up cigars and golf. "They don't want to be little babies," and have divided them into the shape of their little grandmothers.

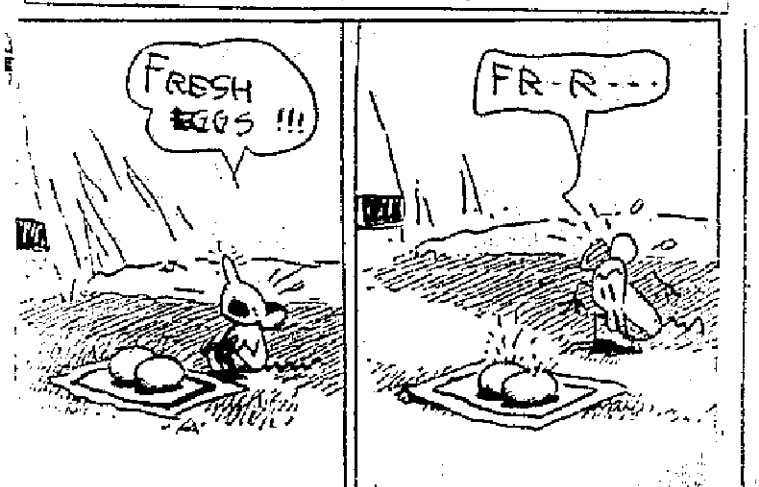

Monieur Audebrand then goes on reproaching the fair sex for using slang.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Industrial stocks again under selling pressure today, while rallies took place in time, most of the issues lost more than they gained, with the result that the bears were in the saddle again, centering their attack on the steel, motor, oil and other issues which have been the mainstay of the market. Some of the issues dropped off a few points, but the heavy selling, but the bears were not so successful in their attack on the stocks which received support as soon as the market opened. A block of 10,000 shares of General Motors was sold at a point above the closing price. Nash and Chrysler were in good demand, but the closing levels were not so successful.

The steel stocks which received support as soon as the market opened. A block of 10,000 shares of General Motors was sold at a point above the closing price. Nash and Chrysler were in good demand, but the closing levels were not so successful.

Investment buying has been limited to the rails by the sharp drop in the price of the steel stocks. The price of the steel stocks has been dropping since the beginning of the year, and the result is that the bears are in the saddle again.

PHY the poor parent, now in the immediate because of his disease, which, when human beings contract it, usually kills them.

The number of deaths is small compared with other death causes, but "phthisis" is a long name, and to be killed by going from your own parent is humbling.

Many husbands, seeing their opportunity, have turned pet parties over to the authorities to be disposed of, mercifully, so many years ago had phthisis.

And for parents, but no great loss. After all, a parent cannot say, "My child, I am not your father, mother, and his strikingly unpoetical neighbor."

Super-Dream of Russians Centering About Villages

Units of Co-Operative Organized and Tractors Brought In, but Youth Handling Machines Untrained and Unable To Get Good Results

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of six articles on the modern Soviet Russia. The series is being written by a man who has been in Russia for many years and who has written extensively for the International News Service.

By FRAZIER HUNT
Copyright 1936 by F. N. S. I.

Jan. 17.—It is a super-dream of the Russians to have a little more than a hundred million people in the villages of the country. The idea is to have the villages as the center of the country, each owning and operating its own tractors and machinery.

All land is owned by the state, but each peasant can have what he can work—about seven to eight acres for each soul in the family. He can sell or dispose of his grain but it is his as long as he works it. In the million villages there have been little changes in the past few years—no modern machinery, no schools, no culture, but always the same old dream and hope of a better life, of education, of good homes. By forming co-operatives and introducing machinery it was thought they could be pulled up by their own bootstraps. Hundreds of these co-operative villages were consequently organized and tractors brought in—but something was wrong. Peasant boys and girls handling these imported machines were untrained. Tractors were abused, ripped to pieces and then abandoned. This new machine had demanded an exact worship. It demanded priest-mechanics and missionary-engineers.

Based on Red Revolution. Then less than 15 months ago there was thought out the "tractor center" scheme—a brand new idea of efficient mechanized cooperative farming. Naturally, it must be changed, re-drawn, and made to fit the varied country conditions of this endless land. But it is the idea that eventually will remake all Russian country life. It is the basis of the real revolution—the deep and solid foundation upon which will be built the Russia of the future.

The tractor center is planned as follows: A tractor station is established, preferably on a railroad, from this point a circle is drawn with a radius of 10 miles. In this tractor center will be housed some 200 tractors, with other farm machinery in preparation. There will be machine and repair shops and in the winter a tractor school.

In the spring groups of tractors, ranging in numbers from eight to 12 or 15, will move out to the various villages in the "county" or "township" community. Each group will be under the general charge of a skilled mechanic, but the tractors and machines will be manned by the young men and women in each village. All labor, except technical and expert mechanics and tractorists, will be supplied by the local villages. Machines will do all the plowing, harrowing, planting and harvesting at a charge of from 25 to 35 1/3 per cent of the crop. Each peasant family will be given its proportionate share according to the amount of land and labor contributed. With the land plowing finished, the tractors and machinery will be brought into the tractor center, overhauled and repaired and made ready for the spring work.

Build New Agriculture. It will mean, if it succeeds, that eventually Russian agricultural life may pass American country life. To date the mechanical genius of America has not been turned on our own agricultural problems. Our city factories have shot ahead with incredible speed while our farming methods have lagged behind.

Horses are gone in our cities but they still do 90 per cent of the work on our farms. The small factory unit has been absorbed in our great industrial organization—and yet the small farm hangs on. Here in Red Russia they have the tendency to build a new and efficient modern agriculture. They see that the machine is as important to the farm as to the city, and they are attempting to leap across a half century of static country conditions into the new agricultural world of the future.

Becomes Social Center. Eventually they plan to make this tractor center a social and economic center as well. Here will be established small packing plants, cheese factories, flour mills and a score and one manufacturing establishments to utilize the raw products and the labor of the community. Here, too, will be the community high school and the workers' college—as well as the tractor and machine school. Here will be a central power station that will send light and power to the furthest corner of the district.

A new economic life will bring education, culture and a whole new social life. Once successful it will lift the peasant out of the mudhole of the past.

Such is the dream. It will be changed, re-drawn and made to fit into the actualities and necessities of the time and place. But it will all be based on the coming of the machine to the country, the industrialization of the land.

Only through the machine and modern methods can this peasant present ever be taken from the life of poverty and ignorance. This is the dream that the peasant is being asked to subscribe to—to turn to the land, his labor and culture, his equipment and labor, and to become part of this new farm factory, under the skill and leadership of the peasant, individualistic "Kulak" he now makes for the moment.

Tractor Is Symbol. But he is going red, the great, unconscious mass movement for machinery and cooperation has caught him. He is beginning to worship the machine god. He bows and crosses himself before the tractor then.

And this tractor will remain the symbol of all this mechanization and industrialization—the tractors by the thousands, the tens of thousands, the hundreds of thousands.

Editor's Note: With tomorrow's article Mr. Hunt concludes this series of six articles on Soviet Russia and sums up his opinion of the movement for the mechanization of Soviet agricultural life, and the eventual importance of this movement. It means, he says, that the cities with their efficiency are at that attempting, along practical lines, to get in tune with the Russian land—and last they are carrying the real revolution to the Russian masses.

"And in the meantime Russia turns red in one great, overwhelming mass movement." It means that Russia is raising up a new peasant, of a new stature. He will no longer be the ignorant, illiterate, superstitious peasant of the dark villages. He will be a man of the new world of machinery.

PUPILS GIVE PROGRAM. The weekly program of Room 10, Central Junior High school, was given Wednesday morning. Isabelle Kelly opened the program with a scripture reading, followed by a poem, "Just a Little Thrift Song," by Barbara French. Naomi Fessell read a poem, "Bring Out Your Dead." A number reading was given by Helen Gump. The program closed with a flag salute by the class and a story of Benjamin Franklin, told by Katharine Harvey.

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been overstimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this laxative, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Ad.

Station W G Y's Radio Fight Goes To United States Supreme Court

Answer to Question of "Who Owns the Air?" Sought by Company and State

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A battle of lawyers for the government, the General Electric Co. and the State of New York prepared to go before the supreme court late today for an answer to the question of "Who owns the air?"

The issue is to be placed before the nation's high tribunal in arguments in the appeal of the federal radio commission to sustain its action in ordering WGY broadcasting station at Schenectady, N. Y., to share time with KGO station at Oakland, Calif.

The General Electric Co. makes the question of ownership of the airwaves in a case linked with the court. It is there to say ownership of the air is in the states.

The high court may not be called upon to decide the vital question, it appeared, although it is raised square by the electric company.

Part of this question, the General Electric Co. contended that the radio commission's allocation order forcing WGY was subject to review by the lower courts under the radio act.

The radio commission regards the case as the most important thus far going on the question of governmental regulation. If the electric company wins, according to commission lawyers, the entire regulation order of 1925 may be needed, radio broadcasting then would then revert to the classic condition which caused demands for the new distribution of licenses and wave lengths.

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

IF YOU are a horse man, you will find these three new books, "Dandelion Days," "The Passing of Normalcy," and "The Road to and Maintenance of Good Health," by Edna S. Dutton, very interesting. "Dandelion Days," by Henry Williamson, is a story of a boy's life in the West. It is a story of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West. "The Passing of Normalcy," by Charles W. Woods, is a story of a boy's life in the West. It is a story of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West. "The Road to and Maintenance of Good Health," by George Cleveland, is a story of a boy's life in the West. It is a story of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West, of a boy's life in the West.

Colorful Setting in Canadian Story

A TALE of the colorful criminal underworld in Montreal is told by Louis H. Hunt in "Scout Man Has Story for Boys," a new mystery story for April. Hunt, a French-Canadian who hides away in one of the alleys of the city with his knife in his belt and a band of henchmen at his

Scout Man Has Story for Boys

GEORGE E. MILLER, a member of the National Story League, with many years' experience in teaching and scouting with boys, has put together his experiences with them in "Scout Man Has Story for Boys," a new mystery story for April. Mr. Miller has provided the criticism of the boys themselves who were quick to say what they liked and what they didn't like and he has put together much rich and valuable information on the psychology of successful story telling to American boys.

service is the "hair shot" of his social strain. Michael Brent, enterprise young lawyer, stumbles on a trail which leads him to Labouff. Through murder and intrigue, through Montreal's slays and laments, and through a series of events in a thrilling hunt. Some say the story reminds one of "Les Misérables."

Mother-Babies Text of Book

PARENTS prefer babies," by Esther L. Schwartz, will be issued by Dutton's in April. The story is neither smart nor flippant but is a book of sincere verse about motherhood and babyhood. The poems contain not only sentiment but healthy advice on bothersome relatives and their troublesome advice, good, sound hygiene advice, nursing, sanitation, how to care for a modern hygienic baby, told delightfully and with a sense of humor.

Cave Story Furnishes Thrills

FLORENCE McCLURG EVANS and Howard Everson have written an exciting tale called "The Secret Cave," to be issued in April by Dutton's, a story of how Sammie, Andy and Peter discover a queer looking cave on their grandfather's farm and proceed at once to get lost in it. What the boys find there as they explore the crystal rooms and follow the footprints of another age which lead from a jagged quarry to the banks of an underground river makes highly exciting reading.

CHARLES BARRY whose herodotus is Lawrence Gilman's of Scotland Yard offers "The Avenging Ikon" for March publication.
